Why You Need To Utilize The Power Of Intention And Belief For Making Magical Spells Work!

When you enter the world of the magical and mystical realms you will soon discover that gaining real results with your magical spells and rituals are governed by setting the right intention and having firm belief in your spell working as a thing that has already happened.

The technique of intention is the ability to clearly state on your own terms the results you want your magical spell or ritual to produce. When you have a clear set intention with the direct detail you will have much greater success as a magician when you cast spells or conduct rituals. The intention is a thing you plan or aim for and when it comes to magic it is seeing your desired outcome manifest into physical reality. When you have this technique strengthened with the power of belief you will get even greater results. When it comes to magic spells and rituals actually working it completely depends on you to have full belief in your desired outcome as already having happened.

Belief is everything when it comes to magic as well as most religions and spiritual teachings. What you believe you become. When you have full belief in the magical process and full faith that it will work without a shred of negative thinking or disbelief then you will have untold power and will most certainly gain results from your magical spells and rituals. Belief grouped together with intention followed with imagination and willpower are the four key ingredients that it takes to make your magical process actually work and manifest in physical reality. You do not have to be foolish and try to conjure and command spiritual entities like Gods, demons or angels for help or mercy. Instead, you can use these four key things to strengthen yourself. You can be just as powerful as any spiritual entity other magicians may turn to for help. A true magician can do things on his own for his own benefit and the benefit of others.

The whole purpose of a magical request is to have a clear intention in mind with accurate and clearly laid out details on what you want your magic to accomplish. If you have vague or open-ended requests with no definitive desire or thing to be completed specified in detail then don't expect any results any time soon. Your intention has to be clearly stated at the beginning of your spell or ritual.

The whole purpose of your magic spell or magic ritual is to create a magical effect in physical reality or to better yourself. You have to be incredibly specific with what you want to happen and even state when you specify or intend for your magical event to happen. When you utilize your imagination use the creative element while in meditation to see the desired event unfold before you while in meditation using creative visualization. Clearly state your intention and enforce it with your imagination by doing your best to see it with your mind's eye as it plays out and becomes a reality.

Really see it and feel it. It will take time to fully master the technique of creative visualization but we talked about that in a previous lesson. What you can do is meditate twice a day for twenty minutes a day. Meditate for twenty minutes right after you wake up from a nights rest. Meditate for twenty minutes before you go to sleep every night. You will gain greater control over your mental faculties which in turn will give you greater access to your imagination and the powers of creative visualization.

Now the power of a clear intention followed with creative visualization is a technique that is known to work by mystics, magicians and religious leaders from around the world and eras of time. So use this to your advantage. The power of intention when combined with the firm power of belief can make you an unstoppable force when it comes to having your magic spells and rituals either empower you or create change in reality.

You will need absolute faith that your magic will in fact work and already has worked. If you have one shred of unbelief it will completely eliminate any results from happening. Another key strategy is to keep your magic spells and rituals to yourself because other peoples non-belief in your magic spell can effect it transmuting results. You have to have uncanny belief in your own powers and your ability to harness the power of the mind to create desired change using magic.

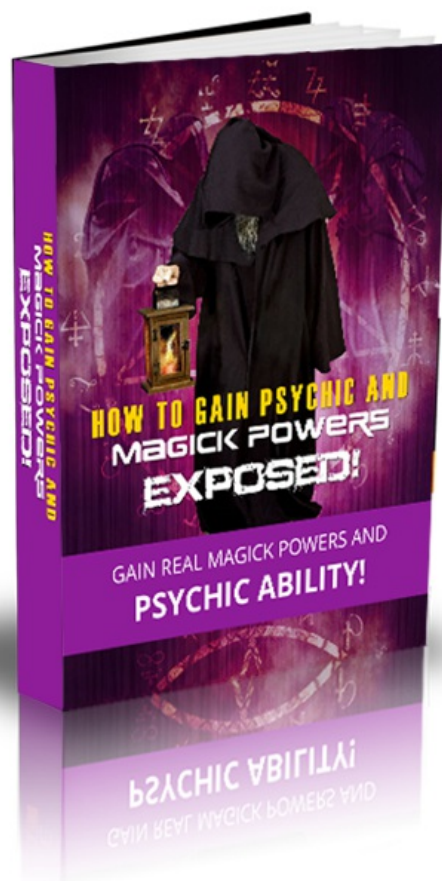

You need to have absolute belief and faith. Like I stated before if you do not have a firm belief or question the effectiveness of what you are doing, you will only hinder your own progress and the ability for your spells and rituals or any magic you perform to work at all. The power of belief when combined with intention, imagination and willpower will create an unstoppable creative force at your disposal that you can harness to change the weave and fabric of our universe.

This is a very real thing and many people hear of belief in modern religions as being fundamental because it truly is. If you inject very serious belief in the magical process and the powers of mind then you can make your spells and rituals work. Make this something you remember from here on out if you have learned anything from this report. The power of belief is essential to attaining magical results. It will either give you results or leave you with nothing and wondering if magic spells are even real. Have complete faith in yourself and what you are doing. If you do you will see results.

When you have a clear intention with the desired aim with details combined with a powerful belief, willpower, and imagination you have the very necessary ingredients for creating change in what we know as physical reality. You do have the very real power within you. Many religious teachers and spiritual leaders have stated this all throughout the ages and continue to do so in the here and now. Be sure to harness clear intention and empower it with belief and make your magic spells and rituals work much more often and much greater levels than you may have ever thought of.
